

Says Ford informed of Nixon resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, his 2,026-day presidency shredded by scandal, told Vice President Gerald R. Ford today he is resigning as President of the United States, a White House aide said.

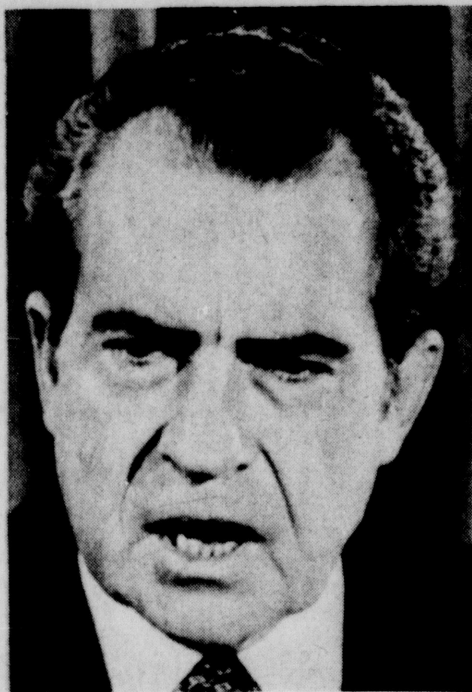

House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes confirmed in an interview that the President would resign, but later said he had been misunderstood.

Nixon arranged to address the nation over TV and radio at 9 p.m. EDT.

A House Democratic leader said he was told that Nixon's resignation would go to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Friday, and that Ford would be sworn in later in the day as 38th President.

Rep. John McFall, D-Calif., the House Democratic whip, said he got that information from Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill.

In a brief interview, Rhodes was asked about reports that the President would resign, and said they were correct. He later issued a statement denying that he had said the President planned to announce his resignation tonight.

In that statement, Rhodes said only that it was his impression the President would make a definitive statement "that will leave no doubt in the minds of the American people as to the ultimate outcome of this tragic period which the country has endured."

However, an aide to Rhodes said that the original account of the Arizona congressman's information on resignation was correct.

Meanwhile, Ford canceled a 12-day trip through the West, thus heightening the indications that a transition of power was imminent.

Other congressional sources said the resignation would be effective at noon Friday.

Nixon spent an hour and 10 minutes with Ford today, and a White House aide said the President told Ford then of his decision to resign.

The President then summoned Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress to the White House for an early evening meeting.

No man has ever resigned from the presidency.

After days of intense speculation over Nixon's course in the face of certain House impeachment, the only question seemed to be the hour at which the President's decision would be executed.

Rhodes said Nixon would resign by late afternoon. The formal instrument of resignation would go to Kissinger as secretary of State.

Since Nixon's admission Monday that he concealed Watergate evidence from House impeachment investigators, the public and his own lawyers, the pressure has mounted for the President to quit.

A haggard Ronald L. Ziegler, his voice choked with emotion, made only a brief announcement on the day's plans, and

Ford cancels political trip; meets with Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford canceled a 12-day political trip today as congressional leaders said he will be sworn in Friday as the nation's 38th President.

Cancellation of the trip was announced by Ford's press secretary, Paul Miltich.

The vice president met with President Nixon for 70 minutes today, apparently to learn of the President's decision to resign.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said only that Nixon had "asked the vice president to come over for a private meeting."

Ford became vice president on Dec. 6, 1973. He succeeded Spiro T. Agnew who resigned Oct. 10, 1973, after pleading no contest to a charge of evading federal income taxes.

Ford was to attend a Republican telethon to be broadcast in Los Angeles to West Coast states tonight. It was postponed this morning because of the "fast-changing situation in Washington."

GOP National Chairman George Bush said in Los Angeles.

"That was the reason for our going today and that's the reason the trip's been postponed," the Ford spokesman said.

Asked what kind of opinion the vice president's office might have on the current situation, the spokesman replied, "I hear we're going on the trip, but we're just going a little later."

Before the announcement of the delay, Ford press secretary Paul Miltich said plans for the trip were unchanged.

Another rate hike is sought

The Missouri Public Service Co. announced today that it has filed a request with the Missouri Public Service Commission for a general increase in the company's natural gas rates, which would raise customers' bills by about 10.88 per cent a month.

Richard C. Green, company president and general manager, said the increase was requested due to inflation. Costs have risen much faster for the utility than for the public in general, Green stated.

If approved by the commission, minimum bills in MPS' southern and north central gas systems would rise by about 4 cents per month. The average user (approximately 12,500 cubic feet of natural gas per month) would pay an additional $1.10 per month.

Communities in the MPS southern gas system include Sedalia, Clinton, Lexington, Marshall, Nevada, Platte City, Richmond, Weston, Deerfield, Henrietta, Leeton and Tracy.

Green said that any rate increase approved will likely not be effective for six to 11 months from now.

If customers and municipal governments protest, the PSC usually blocks such increases until it can hear evidence and study supporting figures.

Last month MPS raised its gas rates the fourth time since Dec. 24. The July increase in gas rates averaged about 49 cents per month per customer.

Thursday's announcement followed Wednesday's report on a rate increase requested by MPS for electricity. That hike would amount to about a 19 per cent increase in individual customers bills.

The electric rate request would increase the company's revenues by $10,350,000. The gas rate request amounts to $941,000 in new income for the firm.

As result of drought

Disaster is declared

The Pettis County Emergency Committee, as expected, unanimously voted Thursday morning to declare the entire county a disaster area due to recent drought conditions.

The action could eventually result in low interest loans to farmers and establishment of a federal livestock feed program.

Attending the one-hour meeting at the local Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office were board members Dick Dalton, executive director of the county ASCS; Lloyd Lewellen, area farm management specialist with the University of Missouri Extension Service; and Fred J. Huhman, county supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration. The fourth board member, Dennis Borchardt, district conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, was out of the state on business.

Dalton said the board's recommendation now will be sent to the Missouri

Emergency Committee. The state committee, in turn, will submit to Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz's office a list of counties it thinks should receive disaster status.

All of the state's ASCS offices were instructed to submit a report to the state committee by Friday, Dalton said.

Huhman said that if Butz declares the county a disaster area, then the Sedalia FHA office will be authorized to issue loans to farmers at 5 per cent interest.

Dalton said that with disaster status the county would stand a better chance to receive government-owned livestock feed. Application for the feed, he said, can be made at any time, but higher priority is given to emergency or drought-stricken areas.

The lack of rain and hot, windy weather resulted in the drought, the board agreed. Lewellen said this is the worst summer since 1954.

Dalton pointed out that from June 15 to Aug. 5 many parts of the county received only 1.78 inches of rain. There were 14 days when the temperature reached 95 degrees, eight when the thermometer hit 100 degrees and two when a scorching 104 was recorded, Dalton said. And, he added, it was windy in five of the 95-plus days and in three of the 100-plus days.

The 100 degree heat and wind, Lewellen said, is "what wrecked the corn crop."

The board estimated the corn loss at 50 per cent of the entire crop. Bean losses, at present, were estimated at 20 per cent although, Huhman warned, "they could turn out to be 50 per cent." Lewellen said milo losses are about 20 per cent, and pasture reduction now stands at about 25 per cent.

The board members said the drought has

No matching funds available for city's water department

Hopes for $180,000 in matching federal funds to construct a sludge disposal system were dashed Wednesday night.

Herb Taylor, water department manager, reported to the Water Board that the Environmental Protection Agency, which had promised the funds, informed him that as of July 1, 1974, no more grants of this type would be given.

A letter from EPA said that questions have been raised regarding the continuation of the practice of awarding grants for sludge handling, pretreatment, and/or overall treatment facilities constructed at municipal water treatment plants.

The letter further stated that these facilities were not included in the projects intended for grant assistance under the construction grants program. Therefore, grants for all such facilities can no longer be approved.

Taylor said this means that before a grant is given the project has to be connected with the city service system.

The Clean Water Commission had previously requested the department to build a sludge disposal operation to be completed by March 1, 1976, to update the Sedalia plant.

Taylor contacted Rep. William Randall about the loss of funds. Randall called Taylor July 28 to discuss the issue. "You have no choice but to go ahead and do it," Randall said, in regard to the disposal plant construction. He also stated he was going back to look into the case and see why the funds were stopped. Randall assured Taylor he would be notified as soon as there is further information, Taylor said.

The financial loss amounts to 90 per cent of the total $200,000 expected cost. Federal funds would have made up 75 per cent and state funds the additional 15 per cent.

Taylor said, "It will have to be done with completely local financing now. However, it will not affect water rates."

The sludge disposal would eliminate alum and lime from going into Flat Creek. The Clean Water Commission has told the local company that discharges into the creek must end June 1, 1976.

Black and Veatch, a Kansas City firm approved by the board to construct the lagoon, submitted an engineering contract to the board for approval. The contract states that payment would be on a monthly basis and would include payroll costs plus 125 per cent, travel expenses, and automobile expenses of 15 cents per mile.

The board deferred signing the contract until Taylor had endeavored to get some kind of a maximum figure from the firm.

In other action, the board voted to drill a new well. There are now three wells besides the one that goes through the plant. Board members felt that an additional well was needed to help meet increased water demands.

"A well is the quickest way to get water and carries you over the peak load," Taylor stated.

During July, 121 million gallons of water were used, the biggest pumpage on record. July 20 (during the Ozark Music Festival) 6,071,000 gallons of water was pumped, the largest amount in the history of the water department, whose records go back to the 1930s.

Mavros pessimistic about Cyprus talks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros said prospects for the second round of Cyprus peace talks today "are gloomy and I am pessimistic."

The foreign ministers of Greece, Turkey and Britain are seeking a political settlement to build on the ceasefire so far largely ineffectual that they signed eight days ago in the talks' first round.

"No self-respecting man can approach the second round of the negotiations while the agreement of the first round is still not being applied," Mavros told newsmen at Geneva airport.

The talks opened last week. On Cyprus, a member of a British television crew was killed by a land mine and four other foreign newsmen were wounded as a press convoy entered the town of Lapithos.

Newsmen in the convoy said Ted Stoddard, a soundman for the British Broadcasting Corp., was killed when he stepped on the mine. The wounded were Paul Roque, a French photographer of The Associated Press; Chris Morris, a British correspondent of the BBC; Lefkos Christodoulides, an American of Greek descent on assignment for the New York Times; and Simon Dring, another Briton with the BBC.

In New York, the Greek mission to the United Nations declared that Cyprus must be demilitarized in order to preserve its independence. The U.N. mission of the new civilian Greek government said Turkish withdrawal would be the "first urgent step" toward peace.

The mission said that when that is done, Greece would recall all its officers and other military personnel from the island.

Greek officers on Cyprus led the coup last month that ousted President Makarios.

The Greek U.N. mission added that Athens did not intend to negotiate at Geneva until Cyprus was made a party to the talks. Britain, Greece and Turkey — guarantors of Cypriot independence under a 1960 treaty — signed the July 30 cease-fire agreement.

Rauf Denktash, leader of the Turkish Cypriots, is expected to join the talks on Saturday with Glafcos Clerides, a Greek Cypriot who is acting president of Cyprus.

Denktash said in London the main goal at Geneva is to save the independence of Cyprus. He said he supports "bicomunal independence" and the idea of gathering "all uprooted Turks ... in one place so we can defend them."

Handicapped veteran has different wheels

Though cross country cyclists are no longer a rarity on America's highways, a few heads turned Wednesday evening when Mickey Massicotte cycled through Sedalia.

Using a crutch to provide half of his pedal-power, Massicotte headed west on Broadway through Wednesday night's drizzling rain.

Massicotte, 25, is destined for his home town, Los Alamitos, Calif. He took 48 days to bicycle from California to Washington D.C. and he reached Sedalia in only 14 days on the return trip. He hopes to arrive in Los Alamitos less than a month from now, making the return trip 39 days long.

Massicotte said he had wanted to make a cross country trip when he was 17, but somehow never got around to it. In the meantime, he was sent to Vietnam while in the service. His leg was amputated at the hip after he was hit by a rocket propelled grenade.

Massicotte said he finally "figured out how to ride a bicycle with one leg" by putting the armrest of his crutch on the bike pedal. So far, the only major casualty Massicotte has encountered in his sojourn is an infected spider bite that put him in a St. Louis hospital for eight days.

"The rest did me good but I had too much of it and now I'm out of shape. I'll have to build up my callouses again," he chuckled.

Massicotte said he's had five falls since he started his trip, but none have resulted in major injuries.

He said he usually rides about 80 miles a day, but sometimes he can finish 100 miles in seven hours, depending on road conditions. He averages 15 miles per hour and rides until he's tired. When it comes time to bed down for the night, he "sticks to streams or lakes."

"I try to stay out of cities," he said, "but last night I slept in a baseball dugout to get out of the rain."

Massicotte's cross country tour is part of a four year project to ride 24,000 miles, the equivalent of riding around the world. He's

Spectacular falls draw tourists

By WILLIAM R. LONG
Associated Press Writer

IGUAZU FALLS, Brazil (AP) — Sightseers come from thousands of miles away to watch tons of river water tumble noisily over high brinks beside subtropical woods. And there's always a roaring welcome for visitors at Iguazu Falls, the Niagara of South America.

But the welcome stops at the edge of the adjacent Iguazu forest, a primitive preserve of cinnamon trees, palms, wildcats, deer, monkeys, snakes and butterflies.

"Man is prohibited," says Jaime de Paiva Bello, administrator of the 420,000-acre national park.

Bello said a force of 50 forest rangers has orders to keep anyone without special permission from penetrating the virgin areas of the dense woods.

"We should not go into the forest because we pollute it for animals," he told an interviewer. "It is a museum of the flora and fauna of southwestern Brazil. It maintains a primitive state and system of ecology."

Tourists can scan the forbidden forest from above when the airliner brings them to this remote corner of Brazil dips and circles the famous cataracts.

Woods similar to those of the park can be seen along the road from the nearby airport, which is being expanded for big jetliners that will bring growing droves of sightseers to the falls. Visitors entering the park for a close-up look at the cascading water of the Iguazu River may step into the shady fringe of the forest preserve. But they will see little or none of the wildlife hidden deep inside the restricted wilds — the panthers, parrots, tapirs, anteaters, furry spiders and giant beetles.

The park administrator said 286,000 tourists came to see the falls in 1972, and 326,000 in 1973.

The growing number of sightseers, however, isn't seen as the greatest threat to the forest's natural habitat. Bello said more damage is done by hunters, woodcutters and settlers.

And thieves. "They steal a lot of palmettos," he said. The palmetto tree, which produces succulent and marketable hearts of palm, is among the wide variety of plant life in the national park.

The settler problem, Bello said, dates back to the early years of the park, which was founded in 1939. He said about 30,000 acres of parkland is occupied by about 430 families — mostly farmers of German and Italian origin.

"They bought the lands, but there was a sale that wasn't quite right," the administrator said.

Bello, a 58-year-old retired army colonel, was brought in to the park's top job three years ago with the main goal of resettling the 430 families on outside land.

"There are persons who accept this, and others who don't," he said. "But what is certain is that they all will get out."

One complication in the move is that some of the new land designated for the settlers may be flooded by a giant reservoir, to be created in the Itaipu hydroelectric dam project. Bello said other land will have to be found for the settlers before work is finished on the 10.7-million-kilowatt dam, planned as the most powerful in the world.

The $3-billion structure, to be built in eight years by Paraguay and Brazil on the Parana River between them, is also expected to flood the SETE Quedas waterfalls on the same river.

Sete Quedas, 150 miles north of Iguazu Falls and also part of a national park, is known for the force and velocity of its plummeting waters.

It is not as high or spectacular as the Iguazu Falls, nor as accessible to tourists. But some nature lovers have complained that a major natural wonder will be eliminated when the Itaipu reservoir backs up in Sete Quedas Falls.

The Itaipu project will not alter the Iguazu Falls or river, whose waters flow into the Parana downstream from the planned dam.

The dam's construction, which will bring thousands of workers and better transportation to the area, is expected to boost the number of visitors to Iguazu Falls. Once finished, the high dam and the big reservoir will be added attractions for sightseers.

But Iguazu Falls will remain the area's main magnet for sightseers.

ASCS head urges push toward farm goals

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the government's most highly organized and far-flung agricultural bureaucracy has urged grass root leaders to step forth with a new push toward Nixon administration farm goals of free enterprise and market reliance.

Kenneth E. Frick, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said Tuesday there is pressure developing for more government controls and dabbling in farm operations.

New reliance on government would mean detours in the free enterprise route sought by the Nixon administration, Frick told more than 200 state committee members and office directors who carry out policy for his agency. Committee men are appointed by the administration to help oversee federal farm programs.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and other administration farm officials have often referred to a long history of government farm policies and how those have prevented farmers from partaking in the free market.

Frick said many "self-serving efforts" will be made to put farmers back under federal control. One now in Congress, he said, would raise price supports of flue-cured and burley tobacco.

The Nixon farm doctrine has been basically to seek fewer controls and less dependence on high price supports and on direct payments, or subsidies, to farmers.

Another danger, Frick said, involves pressure for the government to own large stocks of commodities — a reference to national food reserve plans advocated by some in Congress.

Frick told state leaders to "use every opportunity" to get county committees of the agency to spread the word among consumers that they would benefit if agriculture stays out from under stricter government control.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has approved emergency drought loans for two counties in South Dakota, but there is a large backlog of applications involving a growing number of communities.

A spokesman for the Farmers Home Administration, which handles the emergency aid program, said Tuesday all the county requests are being reviewed but that he did not know when decisions would be made.

The department said Dewey and Ziebach counties in South Dakota were cleared for aid and that others in the state are under consideration.

In all, including South Dakota, there are requests involving 205 additional counties. The other applications include requests from Nebraska, Iowa, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Utah, Wisconsin and North Dakota.

Myrna Ragar, fine arts superintendent at the Fair, showed slides of this year's planned activities. Featured for the first time, she said, will be an international village, where dancers from different countries will present shows each hour.

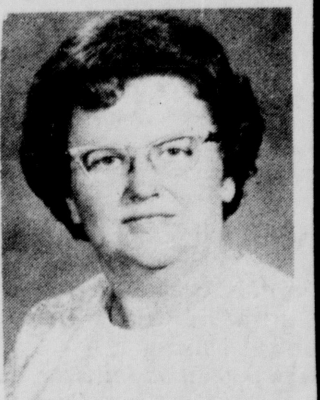

Pete Stohr, chairman of the Optimist Club's Aug. 19 youth day at the Fair, said that the youngsters have been contacted and rides for them have been arranged.

Tom Hubert was a guest of Several escape routes on criminal prosecution

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon on faces possible criminal prosecution should he resign or be removed from office, but several escape routes may be open to him.

Congress or special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski could take steps to save Nixon from a criminal trial. So could Vice President Gerald R. Ford if he succeeds to the presidency.

Some legal experts believe Nixon could even pardon himself of all crimes before leaving office, but that is viewed as only a remote possibility.

Most constitutional scholars concede that a president cannot be indicted while in office, although it is not an undisputed legal principle.

The Watergate grand jury ducked the issue when it chose to name Nixon as an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up.

Nixon was accused as a coconspirator in the plot to block the original Watergate investigation and conceal the White House involvement in the break-in at Democratic national headquarters June 17, 1972.

Monday, he admitted ordering the investigation halted for political reasons and concealing the information from his lawyers and the House Judiciary Committee.

Some members of Congress say Nixon, in effect, confessed to obstructing justice, a crime carrying a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine. Multiple counts and related charges would increase the potential penalties.

If Nixon resigns, he would be vulnerable to an indictment.

If he were convicted in an impeachment trial, he would be removed from office and similarly vulnerable because the Constitution states that "the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment according to law."

To avoid that fate, Nixon could attempt to strike a deal with Jaworski. The President could offer to resign in exchange for the prosecutor's promise not to bring criminal charges. But the deal would not necessarily bind a grand jury.

The prosecutor's office refuses to comment on the possibility of plea bargaining. Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said on Wednesday he is not aware of any ongoing negotiations. Nixon's chief attorney, James D. St. Clair, said he is "not prepared to discuss it."

Congress also could act to save Nixon from criminal charges.

Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., reportedly was seeking Democratic support for a resolution declaring "it is the sense of the Congress" that if Nixon should resign, no federal or state officer "should bring, conduct, or continue criminal or civil processes against him."

Accidents bring about damage suits

A $10,000 damage suit stemming from an auto accident eight years ago was filed Wednesday in Pettis County Circuit Court.

Three other civil suits were filed in court earlier this week.

The plaintiff in the suit, James Heim, Kansas City, is seeking the money for alleged injuries he sustained on Oct. 2, 1966, when the motorcycle he was driving collided with a 1957 Chevrolet driven by Danny Downs, the defendant. The accident occurred at 14th and Montgomery. Heim also is seeking $275 for damage to his motorcycle.

Two civil suits were filed against a man in connection with an auto accident Dec. 27, 1973.

Bonita J. Crawford is seeking 125,000 damages from James Foster, defendant in both suits, for alleged injuries she suffered in a two-vehicle accident on Grand near Third. She also seeks $500 for damages to her car.

In the companion suit, Elizabeth Wells, 16, a passenger in the car driven by Bonita Crawford, is seeking $15,000 for alleged injuries she sustained.

In another suit, Verna M. and Thomas Hodge seek a total of $41,000 from John M. Herbst, Kansas City, and Gloria Miller, Eldon.

The suit contends that Verna Hodge was injured on Feb. 24, 1972, when the car she was riding in collided with a car driven by Herbst on Highway 50 near Limit. Mrs. Hodge is seeking $17,500 damages from Herbst; Hodge is asking for $3,000 for his wife's alleged injuries.

The Hodes also are seeking similar amounts from Gloria Miller, who according to the petition, also was involved in the accident. The Hodes contend that both Miller and Herbst vehicles failed to heed a traffic signal at Broadway and Limit at the time of the mishap.

This prime period lasted for 13 hours. Had it continued for 24 hours, 7.3 million gallons would have been pumped, Taylor said.

Louis Heuerman, plant superintendent, said, "During the Ozark Music Festival, if we had had another well we wouldn't have had any problem."

The board authorized Taylor to contact Layne Western Co., Inc., a well drilling firm in Kansas City, to try to get a flat price on the new well. The package deal would include drilling, pump, booster pump and control panel.

Taylor estimated the cost would be about $100,000.

The Skelly Oil Co. informed Heuerman that the board might purchase two 1,000 gallon Skelgas tanks at the pumping plant for a total $561.02. In the past, Skelly has supplied the tanks, and at the present time the offer to buy is optional. However, the tanks will eventually have to be purchased, Heuerman added.

The board voted to buy the tanks and will now own all four tanks at the plant.

Huerman also reported that Spring Fork Lake was still five feet below reservoir. The reservoir is the city's chief water source.

Hold Sedalia man for investigation

A Sedalia man and a juvenile were picked up by police early Thursday morning at the office of the Sedalia 12-Mile Special Road District.

George W. Bartlette, 21, 520 North Grand, was arrested for investigation of tampering with a motor vehicle and possession of a controlled substance. The juvenile was turned over to juvenile authorities and released to his parents.

Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming said that a decision about filing charges had not been made as of 1 p.m. Thursday.

Three other persons were arrested at 4 a.m. Thursday and charged with permitting minors to be out after curfew. They are Everett Roar, 600 West Second, Elsie Zaremba, 319 East Broadway, and Chester Brown, 1017 Sou'h Massachusetts. All were released on bond to appear in Municipal Court Friday.

Board of Appeals to hold meeting

The Pettis County Board of Appeals will meet from 9 a.m. to noon Monday in the County Court judges room at the courthouse.

Only persons who appeared before the Board of Equalization last month to protest their tax assessments may come before the board Monday to lodge a second complaint.

Both boards are composed of the same persons: the three County Court judges, the county assessor, county surveyor and, in cases involving city property, Sedalia Mayor Jerry Jones.

If persons are still dissatisfied with their real estate or personal property tax assessments after Monday's appeal session, they may make a third appeal to the State Tax Commission.

Sharp wholesale price hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices jumped 3.7 per cent last month, the Labor Department reported today.

This works out to a staggering 44.4 per cent on an annual rate.

The monthly increase was the largest since the 6.2 per cent jump last August and compared with an average monthly increase of 1.4 per cent over the first six months of this year.

All figures are after taking seasonal variations into account.

Since wholesale price increases are usually translated into higher prices for consumers, the report cast a pall over a hopes for any slackening in the nation's double-digit inflation.

The biggest wholesale jump was in farm prices. A 6.4 per cent jump in July reversed four straight months of decline.

The Nixon administration had tied falling or at least moderating food prices to its predictions for getting inflation down to a 7 per cent annual rate of increase by year's end.

The wholesale increase in food prices alone was 3.6 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis, with meat pacing the increase. Processed foods and sugar also posted significant increases. Prices for milk and fresh vegetables declined.

Foreshadowing possible future trouble for meat prices was an even larger rise — 5.5 per cent — for the processed foods and feeds farmers must buy for their livestock.

Auto prices, usually stable at this time of year, also rose.

Industrial commodities moved upward, although not as steeply as farm prices. The increase for the industrial commodities was 2.7 per cent, compared to a 2.2 increase the previous month. Wholesale prices have been increasing by more than two per cent all year.

The increase for commodities as virtually across the board, with the strongest rises in iron, steel, petroleum and its byproducts. Lumber prices, however, declined for the third straight month.

The Labor Department said its index in July reached 161.7 per cent of its 1967 average, meaning that it cost $161.70 to buy at wholesale a statistical amount of materials that cost $100 in 1967. The index in July was 20.4 per cent above the same month last year.

A break-in at the Commerce Building, Third and Ohio Tuesday night resulted in the theft of drugs from a dentist's office and damage to three other offices, police said.

According to police, the thieves gained entry to the building through fire escapes on the west side of the building. They entered through a window on the second floor and sprayed the second floor hallway with fire extinguisher fluid, police said.

The office of Dr. Gary A. Evert, was broken into by prying the door open. Police reported that a surgical head lamp, valued at $100; an FM radio, valued at $250; and a cassette tape recorder, valued at $75, were taken from Evert's office. Also taken were 75 tablets of narcotics and 40 tablets of non-narcotic drugs.

Entry to Tom's Time Shop was gained by knocking a 30-by-9 inch hole in the office door, police said. Two watches were stolen from the shop.

The thieves also gained entry to Commerce Insurance Agency. Though nothing was taken, the office and its contents were damaged, police said.

The office of Miss Hazel Palmer, a local attorney and Magistrate Court judge, was not broken into, but the thieves attempted to gain entry by prying the door.

Early Thursday morning, police officers discovered two windows broken at Esser's Liquor Drive-Thru Store, Main and Missouri. David Esser, owner, estimated damage to two windows at $170 and said that an undetermined amount of liquor was taken.

Repair work is planned for armory

The Sedalia National Guard Armory will undergo repair work to the tune of $27,086 soon, it was announced Thursday by John Cooper, director of the Division of Design and Construction, Office of Administration, Jefferson City.

According to Cooper, apparent low bids on major facility repairs on several National Guard armories throughout Missouri have been received.

The low bid for work in Sedalia came from the Barry Construction Co., California, which also had the apparent low bid for work on the Clinton armory ($24,072) and the Fulton facility ($43,293).

A spokesman for the National Guard here said the local armory's kitchen facilities would be completely revamped. The low bid covers repairing a leaky roof, updating the heating system, blocking a wall in which an old garage door now stands, and other items. The roof and kitchen work on the major factors of the bid, it was indicated.

The Office of Administration said it failed to receive bids for work on the Moberly, Warrensburg, Mexico, Lexington, Albany, Richmond and Hannibal armories.

taking four summers to do it and next year, he plans to tackle Europe.

A trust fund in Los Alamitos was set up for Massicotte's project. It is co-sponsored by the March of Dimes and the American Cancer Society.

So far, he's not sure of the number of pledges in the trust fund. However, he said people often stop him on the way to offer rides or money, but Massicotte has accepted neither in the 62 days he has been on the road.

"I don't carry any money with me," he said, "and I always tell them to send the money to the trust fund, but a lot of them don't. I guess it's a lot of trouble to write a check and mail it."

Donations to the trust fund are handled through "MM Cancer Fund," Los Alamitos Bank of America, Los Alamitos Blvd., Los Alamitos, Calif., 90702.

As far as surviving on the road with only a bike and a back pack, Massicotte said he's a nature lover and prefers sleeping outdoors. By estimating where he will be in a given amount of time, Massicotte sends for money from Los Alamitos every few hundred miles.

When asked for a reason for taking his marathon tour, Massicotte says that he just likes to bicycle and it's something he's always wanted to do.

"Either you dig it, or you don't dig it," he replied, "and I happen to dig it."

Teenagers bound over for trial

Three teenagers were bound over for trial to Pettis County Circuit Court Thursday after preliminary hearings in Magistrate Court.

They are Duane Fisher, 18, Smithton; Samuel M. Kearney, 18, Smithton; and Ronald L. Whitney, 19, Woodstock, Ill. All three are charged with second degree burglary. Kearney also is charged separately with second degree burglary and stealing.

Fisher and Kearney are charged jointly in connection with the break-in last month of the Smithton office of Dr. John C. Brazos. Kearney is charged separately with the theft July 3 of a motorcycle from Dick's Honda, South Highway 65.

Whitney is charged with breaking into the Broadway Realty Co., 1911 West Broadway, on July 20.

All three remain in the county jail in lieu of bond.

Two civil cases are dismissed here

Two civil suits were dismissed recently in Pettis County Circuit Court after out-of-court settlements.

Charles and Julian Upton, Route 2, Green Ridge, were the defendants in a damage suit filed Jan. 2, 1969, by Alvin Larry Geromini, Kansas City.

Geromini alleged that he was injured Sept. 4, 1968, when a car driven by Charles Upton struck a car he was repairing in Hickory County on South Highway 65. He sought $50,000 for his injuries.

In the other suit, Mary and Emmet Donaldson, Berlin Center, Ohio, were seeking a total of $6,500 damages from John Paul Romanick, 1908 West Third, for alleged injuries Mrs. Donaldson sustained Sept. 19, 1972.

According to the petition, Mrs. Donaldson sustained the injuries while she was riding in a car driven by Romanick on Route Y when the car collided with another vehicle.

Says Ford

did not confirm the resignation.

Ziegler told a White House press center conference that it was a difficult time, then announced:

"The President of the United States will meet with various members of the bipartisan leadership of Congress here at the White House early this evening."

"Tonight at 9 o'clock, the President of the United States will address the people of the United States by radio and television from the Oval Office."

Then he turned from the rostrum, answering no questions.

A spokesman for Ford said the vice president would refrain from public comment until the President himself announced his action.

The ultimate decision apparently was made in the middle of the night in the solitude of the First Family's living quarters. A reliable source said Kissinger was instrumental in convincing Nixon his resignation was necessary in the national interest.

After his meeting with Nixon, Ford crossed the street to the Executive Office Building and conferred with his chief aide, Robert Hartman, and a spokesman said he showed no strong emotion.

Disaster

not caused farmers to sell livestock. If anything, Lewellen said, the livestock count is high because farmers have been reluctant to sell at the present market prices.

Dalton explained that if Pettis County would become eligible for the federal livestock feed program, farmers would not be permitted to use the feed to increase the number of livestock, only to maintain the present number.

Lewellen said that the hardest hit parts of the county appear to those in a strip "right down the middle on Highway 50."

Dalton said that regardless of disaster status, the ASCS office will continue to take applications from farmers for low yield payments. Dalton added that farmers must leave their fields as they are if they make application. Corn converted to silage now cannot be appraised for damage, he pointed out.

Dalton said the state probably will act on the local board's recommendation within the next 10 days to two weeks.

Author of 'Widow' relates experiences

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Lynn Caine has just had her first book published. The reviews have been laudatory. She has been interviewed, acclaimed, lionized and parodied.

"But the one person I want to share it all with isn't here," she says.

The book is called "Widow," which is what its author has been since her husband, Martin, died of cancer three years ago.

"After he died, I wanted to die," she says of those years filled with "nights of waking up at 4 a.m. in terror," financial panic, "crazy" acts and "stupid" decisions.

The realization that one out of every six women in this country over age 21 is a widow and the hope that her experiences would help others motivated the book, she explains.

"There are seasons of grief," she says. "If you loved your husband you're going to be mourning him the rest of your life. But it softens the grief to know there is a pattern, and you'll not always feel so helpless and trapped."

The book is based on a sort of diary she wrote during those sleepless nights, pouring out her anger at a husband who had "abandoned" her, children whose very existence she resented, and a society in which she lost her identity when she became a widow.

"So much of what I was was contingent on being married to Martin," she points out. "People think of a widow as a poor, bereft, forlorn, frail, helpless creature, a pitiable being. Emotionally it may be as hard when a man loses his wife but socially and economically it's easier."

Mrs. Caine, a petite woman with big hazel eyes and short dark hair, admits she was lucky to have had a job and wise to have continued working during the difficult 14 months of her husband's terminal illness.

"My job was my lifeline and I'm convinced it saved my sanity," she said in her office at a publishing firm, where she is publicity manager. "You must participate in the world as soon as you can. Find stimulating interests or work to get you out of yourself."

"And exercise. Healthy fatigue is good," advises the 5 foot 1, 105 pound advocate of yoga. "Don't depend on tranquilizers, because you'll have to face your grief eventually. If you can't deal with your depression get professional help."

Most important of all, plan ahead from the first day of marriage, warns Mrs. Caine, whose husband had a World War II injury and couldn't get life insurance. She suggests an annual contingency day to discuss wills, investments and the family's financial situation.

"The problem begins and ends with our attitude toward death," she says. "We won't face the fact that we're going to die. It's an act of love for a husband to discuss finances with his wife."

She acknowledges that her biggest mistake was to have bought a house in New Jersey at the urging of her husband's best friend. "What woman in her right mind would move to the suburbs when she can't even drive? I began to feel better when I decided a year later to move back to Manhattan where I belonged."

Moving is the step widows most often take, she notes, and she strongly advises against making any immediate decisions after the death of a husband "when you have no perspective, no judgment, your emotions and intellect are at odds."

What else would she have done differently?

"I wish we both could have cried together, expressed more anger," she says. "Martin was a very strong personality; he was dignified and had to die the way he lived. He tried to spare me but it would have been better if I had been able to release my emotions. It would have been better for the kids if I had been able to give up my brave act and tell them I was scared to death."

The kids are son Jon, 12, and daughter Buffy, 8. And their mother is determined that Jon must not feel the burden of being "the man of the family." She would consider marrying again only if she found a man "in touch with his emotions."

"The greatest gift is a happy marriage or a happy relationship," she declares. "It's nice to share, but I'm no longer afraid of being alone. I have my children, my friends and a wide variety of interests. The women's movement has touched us all and I can go anywhere I want. I don't feel my future or my happiness is contingent on a man."

Friends collect recipes for us from their friends. One of the best summer offerings comes from a young man of Greek descent. He passed along his family's favorite way of charcoal-broiling marinated lamb steaks thickly overlaid with fresh garden mint.

When we tried his recipe we asked several neighbors to be "guinea pigs." They were so enamored of the dish they urged us to call them into service again! The mint, green and attractive when the meat is first put on the grill, chars during the cooking. But no matter. It gives subtle flavor and is removed before serving.

This manner of charcoal-grilling lamb is apparently one the young man's family evolved; we looked into our dozen or so Greek cookbooks but found no mention of it. So we're especially grateful that we've acquired this recipe — and if you try it, we think you will be, too.

With the lamb we offered cous-cous — the quick-cooking kind that comes from France — and buttered, fresh young snap beans. For dessert, an old-fashioned fresh fruit pudding was perfect.

A word about lighting the charcoal in case you aren't satisfied with your own method. The way we like best is recommended by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture: "The safest way to kindle charcoal is to use dry wads of crumpled newspaper under the briquets. Then simply light the paper as in starting an ordinary wood fire. It may take a little fanning to get

The Greek way...

...top marinated lamb steaks with fresh mint charcoal grilled the charcoal kindled — in other words, to have gray or whitish spots appear on the briquets. In 20 to 30 minutes or so they will be entirely gray and hot enough to grill."

CHARCOAL-GRILLED LAMB WITH FRESH MINT

1/2 cup olive oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon cracked pepper
2 large garlic cloves, peeled and slivered
Butt half (about 3 pounds) of a lamb leg, cut into six 1-inch thick steaks gether the oil, lemon juice, salt and pepper; add the garlic. Add lamb and turn to coat well. Cover tightly with plastic wrap and refrigerate at least 12 hours, turning meat once midway. Remove lamb from marinade; reserve marinade. Arrange a thick layer of the mint, stalks and all, on the bottom side of a large hinged broiling rack; place lamb steaks over mint; cover with another thick layer of the mint; close rack. Grill over hot gray charcoal briquets, brushing with reserved marinade, to desired doneness—10 to 20 minutes on each side. To test doneness, with a small sharp knife cut a slit in the meat—it should look slightly pink if you like lamb medium-rare, gray if you like it well-done. Open broiling rack and remove mint—it will be charred—before serving lamb. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Polly's pointers

Salad bowls need a finish lift

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with mothers who take their children shopping and let them play with the toys and other such things. Many things are broken and we all know who is paying through the teeth for this breakage — every consumer. Let us all see if we can help get those prices back to being believable. — GARI

DEAR POLLY — Like Sue I, too, had that problem of tangled embroidery floss. I rolled some scraps of felt so they looked like hot dogs and then wrapped my floss around these rolls. I have no more trouble with tangling. — JACKIE

DEAR POLLY — and SUE — Over 60 years ago when my mother was teaching me stitchery she showed me how to keep embroidery floss from tangling. Remove center wrapper on each skein, unfold to length of loop, cut through and have the ideal length of six-ply thread for the work. Each skein, according to color, is placed between the pages of a magazine leaving an end of each showing at the top. You have a neat, easy-to-use arrangement. When going on a trip I cut the skeins as above and wrap each one on a piece of cardboard cut like the ones my needlepoint yarn comes on.

Also I have a favorite Pointer. I am an oven cook but detest cleaning the oven. After roasting or cooking anything that spatters grease in the oven I put a small container of full-strength household ammonia in the oven, leave it over night and wipe clean with a damp sponge the next day. — CONEY POLLY'S NOTE — Some authorities suggest pouring ammonia directly on burned spills so it can be wiped away more quickly.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — Is there a way to refinish wooden salad bowls? Mine came from the Philippines and have been washed in a dishwasher. I am sure I tried using sandpaper but it does not remove all the finish. I hope someone can tell me how to do this. —RUBY

Reporters chased resignation rumors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chasing reports that the President would quit was like being in a cave full of echoes. Everybody had heard something. Nobody was sure where it was coming from.

It was a hunt for one of the biggest news stories of the century. Here is how it was Wednesday for reporters who didn't find it.

Two newspapers, in Phoenix and Providence, said Nixon had decided to resign. White House spokesmen wouldn't give a straight answer. The game was afoot.

Reporters sought out Vice President Gerald R. Ford, who would be sworn in the moment the President stepped down. No clues there. Ford went ahead with plans to appear at a routine ceremony Thursday morning.

One White House aide reported that Nixon would resign, but wasn't sure when. Nothing first-hand.

A Democratic member of the House Judiciary Committee, Charles Rangel of New York, said he had been told by one of Nixon's Republican defenders on the committee that a resignation might come soon. "He said, 'Don't write your impeachment speech, you won't get a chance to use it,'" Rangel said. "I tried to pump him, but he wouldn't say anything." Intriguing, but what did it mean?

There was a rumor that Edward Cox, the President's son-in-law, had been summoned to Washington from New York. The rumor proved to be true. Then it was reported that the President had met with his family at the White House. But what did he tell them?

A call to yet another Republican congressman brought this response:

"I've been listening to the radio all afternoon. Nobody will tell me anything either."

Another Democratic congressman, who asked not to be named, said a senior Republican colleague had told him Nixon would quit Friday. But there was no indication where the information originated.

Various television news reports quoted various sources as indicating Nixon would resign.

Youth is returned on charges

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jeffrey Skaggs, 19, was returned here from Wisconsin Wednesday as a suspect in a slaying and five armed robberies, police said.

Skaggs was charged in a federal warrant with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution in connection with a service station robbery last May.

He was also booked suspected of murder and armed robbery in the fatal shooting of Gordon Emmons, 60, during a tavern holdup May 27, police said.

Skaggs, who was also booked in connection with three other armed robberies, was arrested July 8 in Grantsbury, Wis., as a suspect in a burglary.

Another youth, James Murry, 17, has been charged with murder and three counts of armed robbery in Emmons' death.

Strike by 150 ended

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A wildcat strike by some 150 long lines telephone workers here ended Wednesday as they began returning to their jobs.

The workers, all members of Local 6350, Communications Workers of America, had walked out Tuesday in protest of a tentative contract settlement reached Sunday with American Telephone and Telegraph.

The workers were opposing a three-year tentative agreement that would grant them a 10.7 per cent wage increase. They had sought a 16 to 18 per cent pay boost.

Douglas Fitch, president of the local, which represents workers in parts of Arkansas, Illinois and Missouri, said the tentative settlement has sparked sporadic walkouts among communications union employees in 10 major cities across the country.

Fitch said, however, all Local 6350 workers were expected to be at work today, relieving supervisory personnel who had manned their positions during the brief strike.

The workers decided to end their walkout after union officials persuaded them to voice their disapproval of the contract by voting against it.

Ratification of the agreement is taking place through the mail and balloting is to be completed by Aug. 31.

Vietnam Veterans' suit names IRS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Vietnam Veterans Against the War filed suit Wednesday in U.S. District Court against the Internal Revenue Service.

The antiwar group, a non-profit organization that promotes veteran interests, charged the IRS has delayed action 26 months on the group's request for tax exempt status because the group is an "enemy" of the Nixon Administration.

The suit asks the court to force the IRS to take immediate action on the request.

Ceremony would be a minimum

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If President Nixon should resign or be removed from office by impeachment, the transition to a new administration would be sudden and complete with a minimum of ceremony.

The new president would take office as quickly as in the past when a president has died. But the fact that the outgoing president is alive and well complicates the matter a bit.

When one president succeeds another after an election, the tradition is that the mantle of office changes hands when the new man takes the oath. Despite the complications, that probably would be the case in the event of resignation or impeachment.

Should Nixon become the first president in the history of the office to resign, it is likely that the change of command from President Richard M. Nixon to President Gerald R. Ford would be accomplished before most Americans even knew about it.

All that would be required for Nixon to quit the office would be for him to transmit a document of resignation to the secretary of state.

But in the interest of national security in the nuclear age, Nixon almost certainly would have Ford on hand to take the oath of office as his successor immediately.

In the case of a president being forced from office by impeachment, the procedure would be a little more cumbersome but almost as immediate.

The only constitutional requirement for removing a president from his office is a two-thirds vote of guilty to any one article of impeachment. Technically, then, Nixon would cease to be president as soon as a losing vote was announced.

However, for such a momentous occasion, some ceremony is required. The Senate rules under which the trial would be conducted state that upon conviction "the Senate shall proceed to pronounce judgment."

Presumably, the chief justice as presiding officer at the trial would make the announcement. Then deposit of a certified copy of the judgment with the secretary of state completes the process.

Ford, no doubt, would be close at hand to take the oath. However, scholars disagree as to the embarrassing gap that would exist between the fatal vote, Nixon's notification and the filing at the State Department.

The Constitution requires a president to take the oath "before he enters on the execution of his office." But as a practical matter he must become president the instant a vacancy exists.

What would happen if the incumbent, though convicted at an impeachment trial, insisted on holding on until he was formally notified and his successor sworn in, is anybody's guess.

Whatever the status of the presidency, the office of vice president would be vacant the moment Ford ascended to the top job. But under the new 25th Amendment Ford could name a new vice president and presidential successor subject to ratification by Congress.

Many officials of the Nixon administration, such as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, would likely stay on in a new Ford administration, for a while at least.

Meanwhile, the ousted president could be indicted, tried and punished for any criminal acts he might have committed in office.

The same would hold true if he resigns. Scholars are not agreed on whether a sitting president has any protection from prosecution, but whatever shield there may be is lost once he leaves office.

Resignation, however, would likely end the impeachment process, although it could go on. In the past the Senate has dismissed impeachment actions against men no longer in office.

The first constitutional object of an impeachment, to remove a person from office, would be satisfied by resignation. But impeachment also allows the Senate to ban a defendant from all future federal office, which would not be accomplished by resignation.

Two Women die in Kansas City crash

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Doris Golladay, 63, and Marjorie Staley, 65, both of Independence, Mo., were killed Wednesday in a two car collision.

Their car and one driven by Lester Grimes, 21, Kansas City, collided on the city's east side. Grimes was injured.

Baton-waving attracts musicians

LONDON (AP) — The urge to conduct a great orchestra — reputedly the secret but frustrated dream of a lot of ordinary men — seems to have overpowered a handful of the world's leading violinists, pianists and opera singers.

In London alone during the coming fall and winter concert season, at least five renowned musicians will forsake their usual role as soloists to wave a baton before major symphony orchestras.

Among them will be such virtuosos as violinists David Oistrakh and Yehudi Menuhin, pianists Sviatoslav Richter and Daniel Barenboim, and singer Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau.

All of these, among others, will conduct leading British orchestras at concerts from October to January. They will all appear, at different times, under the same roof — the Royal Festival Hall on the south bank of the River Thames.

Of these soloists-turned-conductors, the lead-off man this fall will be Richter, the noted Russian pianist who will conduct the London Philharmonic orchestra in two concerts of Mozart music in late October. Richter will be followed in November by David Oistrakh, his countryman, who will set aside his violin to conduct the London symphony orchestra November 10 in a concert of Mozart and Shostakovich.

Then comes Fischer-Dieskau, the great German baritone who is also generally regarded as the world's leading lieder singer. He will conduct the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra in a program of Wagner, Strauss and Schumann December 1. (Fischer-Dieskau will also return in February to conduct the London Philharmonic orchestra).

The youthful pianist, Daniel Barenboim, will follow Fischer-Dieskau in mid-December, conducting the London Philharmonic in two concerts of music by Mozart, Bruckner and Mahler.

In January, Yehudi Menuhin, the onetime child prodigy who for years has been one of the world's greatest violinists, will conduct two concerts of the Royal Philharmonic. In one of them, Menuhin will play a Mozart violin concerto as well as conduct the orchestra in both the concerto and Beethoven's Symphony No. 3.

For both Barenboim and Menuhin, conducting is nothing especially new. Lately Barenboim has been devoting almost as much time to conducting as to the piano.

The London musical season will also be treated to several younger musicians who are primarily conductors but who also perform as soloists. These include Andre Previn, principal conductor of the London Symphony orchestra, and James Levine, assistant conductor at the Metropolitan Opera. Both have scheduled concerts as pianists as well as conductors.

Both Nolan Ryan of the California Angels and Roger Moret of the Boston Red Sox took nohitters into the late stages Wednesday night, only to lose their grip.

Ryan's no-hit bid dissolved in the ninth inning and he lost a 21 heart-breaker to the Chicago White Sox. Moret held Milwaukee hitless until the eighth inning but needed relief help to beat the Brewers 1-0.

After Ryan struck out Jorge Orta, his 13th strikeout of the game, leading off the ninth inning, Dick Allen beat out a slow roller along the third base line for a hit.

Then the roof fell in and the White Sox poured across their winning runs against the Angels' strikeout king.

In the other American League games, the New York Yankees beat the Baltimore Orioles 4-3; the Kansas City Royals took a doubleheader from the Minnesota Twins 7-6 and 5-1; the Detroit Tigers nipped the Cleveland Indians 3-2 and the Oakland A's ripped the Texas Rangers 8-4.

After Allen beat out a roller off the hard-throwing Ryan, Carlos May reached first on an error by first baseman Bruce Bochte and Ken Henderson singled to center to score the tying run for Chicago.

Henderson, who took second on the throw home, held the base as Bill Melton fouled out for the second out of the inning. Bill Sharp then came through with a dramatic hit to right, scoring pinch runner Lee Richard with the winning run.

Red Sox 1, Brewers 0

Moret had two out in the eighth when light-hitting Pedro Garcia lined the first pitch to left field for a single.

That moved Bob Coluccio, who had walked, to second, and brought Dick Drago out of the bullpen. The veteran right-hander got Don Money on a line drive to end the inning. Mike Hegan accounted for the Brewers' other hit with a lead-off single in the ninth and Bob Veale came on to preserve the victory.

Yankees 4, Orioles 3

Thurman Munson drove in one run and scored what proved to be the winner in New York's victory over Baltimore. The Yanks took a 1-0 lead in the first when Brooks Robinson fumbled a grounder by Bill Sudakis, scoring Roy White, then added two more runs in the third.

Royals 7-5, Twins 6-1

Amos Otis drilled his third hit of the game, delivering George Brett with Kansas City's winning run in the eighth inning as the Royals defeated Minnesota in the first game of their doubleheader. The Royals won the nightcap as Jim Wohlford, Brett and Frank White tripled in runs.

Tigers 3, Indians 2

Detroit left-hander Mickey Lolich tossed a seven-hitter and the Tigers scored all their runs on five straight singles in the seventh inning to edge Cleveland.

A's 8, Rangers 4

Oakland's Reggie Jackson cracked a three-run homer and Joe Rudi added a solo shot to ignite the A's over Texas.

National League scores: Philadelphia 3, Chicago 2; Pittsburgh 10, New York 1; Montreal 7, St. Louis 5; Houston 6, Atlanta 4 and Cincinnati 2, Los Angeles 0.

Americans retain their record in tight contest

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The Birmingham Americans are the only undefeated team left in the World Football League. But it hasn't been easy.

"I'll never make it through the season like this," declared Coach Jake Gotta after his Americans pulled out a hair-raising 28-22 victory over the Detroit Wheels Wednesday night.

Gotta's Americans fell behind 22-20 with just one minute to play when Detroit's Bubba Wyche hit Jon Henderson with an 18-yard touchdown pass. But Birmingham quarterback Matt Reed, a strong-armed rookie out of Grambling, immediately went to work.

He connected on passes of 14 and 19 yards to Dennis Homan, ran nine yards himself and then, with just 26 seconds left, hit Al Jenkins in the end zone with a 17-yarder.

The Americans have won all five games they've played by a combined margin of just 41 points.

Elsewhere in the WFL, the Philadelphia Bell whipped the Memphis Southmen 46-15; the Florida Blazers doused the Chicago Fire 46-21; the New York Stars edged the Southern California Sun 11-8; and the Portland Storm struggled to a 15-15 tie with the Houston Texans.

The Hawaiians are at Jacksonville in tonight's national television game.

Birmingham, in addition to keeping its unbeaten record intact, also took attendance honors for the evening with a paid crowd of 40,367.

Big gain

Tight end Jim Bishop makes another big gain for the Birmingham Americans Wednesday night in Birmingham during his team's 28-22 come-from-behind victory over the Detroit Wheels. It was the second week in a row the Americans faced the Wheels in World Football League action and won the game in the final seconds. (UPI)

Reds showing new life signs, look prepared to do battle

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

That body stirring in the National League's West Division belongs to the Cincinnati Reds, who have been buried two or three times already this season but are breathing once again.

Not only are they breathing, they're fighting.

Jack Billingham and Johnny Bench provided Wednesday night's artificial respiration as the rebounding Reds blanked Los Angeles 2-0 to creep within 5 1/2 games of the division-leading Dodgers.

Bench accounted for all of the game's runs with a fourth inning homer — his second game-winner in as many nights against Los Angeles — and Billingham made it stand up with a neat six-hitter for his 14th victory of the season.

The Reds also survived a brief fighting flurry in the ninth, triggered by Bill Buckner's hard slide into Cincinnati second baseman Joe Morgan.

Elsewhere in the NL Wednesday night, Philadelphia edged Chicago 3-2, Pittsburgh battered New York 10-1, Montreal topped St. Louis 7-5 and Houston downed Atlanta 6-4. San Diego and San Francisco were not scheduled.

Phillies 3, Cubs 2

Bob Boone's bloop double chased home two runs and keyed an eighth inning rally that moved Philadelphia past Chicago.

The victory pushed the Phillies to within 1 1/2 games of first place St. Louis which lost to Montreal.

The Phils were trailing 2-1 with the bases loaded and two out in the eighth when Boone delivered his winning hit on a 1-2 pitch against reliever Tom Detmore.

Expos 7, Cardinals 5

Ex-American Leaguer Larry Bittner, making his first start for Montreal since being recalled from the minors last week, contributed a pair of clutch singles, driving in two runs as the Expos trimmed the Cardinals.

Bittner singled and scored on Barry Foote's hit in the third and then singled in front of Ken Singleton's RBI-double in the sixth.

Steve Renko went all the way for the victory.

Astros 6, Braves 4

Cliff Johnson climaxed an eighth inning Houston rally with a two-run pinch homer that lifted the Astros past Atlanta.

Lee May's RBI-double had tied the score before Johnson tagged his fourth pinch homer of the season to win it for Houston.

Darrell Evans and Dusty Baker homered for Atlanta.

Pirates 10, Mets 1

Rookie Larry Demery limited New York to just three hits for his first major league complete game and Manny Sanguillen and Ed

Kirkpatrick slugged home runs for the Pirates.

Demery had the Mets shut out on one hit until the eighth inning.

Player shows talent on tees

CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP) — Veteran Vic Ghezzi, who has walked the fairways with the great and near-great of golf for four decades, appeared star-struck as he watched Gary Player drill his shots like a well-oiled machine on the Tanglewood practice tee.

"Look at that man," exclaimed the 64-year-old former PGA champion from Rumson, N.J. "I've watched him hit 200 drives and 190 of them were as if they had come out of a single mold."

"If he had a crayon attached to his driver, it would leave a single line. I have to pick him to win here."

"Me, too," said Sam Snead, 62, winner of three PGA titles and a threat to take No. 4 at an age when some men are groping for a rocking chair. "This is a driver's course. The man who can drive the ball straight will win here."

"I have to give the edge to Player. Or maybe even Lee Trevino. They will be hitting irons and three woods off a lot of the tees. There will be no advantage to big hitters such as Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf."

Thus the curtain was pulled back for the confrontation of the shot managers and the muscle men in the 56th PGA Championship, starting today over the 7,050-yard, par 70 Tanglewood course.

Player, already winner of the Masters and British Open this year, and Nicklaus, with a record of 14 major championships to his credit, are the co-favorites at 6-1 informal odds, followed by Trevino, Weiskopf, Johnny Miller, Jerry Heard and Hubert Green, ranging from 10-1 to 20-1.

Ghezzi, PGA winner in 1941 and runner-up in the U.S. Open in 1946, predicted that accuracy rather than overwhelming power would be the deciding factor during the next four days.

Snead had practice rounds of 70 and 68 the last two days.

Player wound up five days of practice with a sharp 71 in which he experimented with shots out of the eight-inch rough and the myriad bunkers. There are 98 sand traps on the rolling course.

Movie firm wants to do Paige film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A motion picture company is preparing a two-hour movie for national television on Leroy "Satchel" Paige, the legendary pitcher of the black baseball leagues from the 1920s through the 1940s.

The $800,000 project is planned for showing on CBS the week before the 1975 World Series, says Jim Hawkins, who is producing the film.

"We're working very carefully because we want to show the exploitation of this great man in his private and public life," Hawkins said.

"We're bringing in every phase of black baseball, the Indianapolis Clowns, for example. We want to show how pitiful it was in those leagues. The long bus trips. When it got really good they rode trains. They couldn't stay in hotels. They usually had to stay in private black homes."

"It's just an aspect of life that you really aren't aware of."

Hawkins said he has been talking with Paige periodically for 3 1/2 years collecting material for the film.

"We'll start filming in February on location in Mobile, Ala., (Cleveland Stadium) and all around the South where Satchel grew up and played. We'll tell the whole story of his rise to prominence and his helping to pitch the Cleveland Indians to a World Series triumph in 1948."

The flamboyant Paige was the best known and perhaps the best pitcher in the black leagues for two decades. He reached Cleveland only after Jackie Robinson had broken the major leagues' color barrier with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947. He kept his age a secret, but he was in his 40s and past his prime. Even so he posted a 6-1 record as a starter.

Joe Greene is writing the script. Hawkins says he's not sure who the leading man will be.

He said Paige will appear only briefly in the film, which will take him from age six until his appearance with Cleveland and possibly until the present.

Paige, now retired, lives in Kansas City.

Royals holding big win margin

By The Associated Press

The Kansas City Royals are five games over .500—the biggest winning margin they've had this season.

A three-run rally by the St. Louis Cardinals in the ninth was not enough Wednesday night as they bowed, 7-5, to the Montreal Expos.

The Royals extended their winning streak to five games, taking both ends of a twinight doubleheader, 7-6, 5-1.

In the opener, Amos Otis blunted Minnesota's comeback effort in the bottom of the eighth inning when he scored George Brett from third with a single, his third hit of the game.

Minnesota had scored two runs in the top of the eighth on a walk to Jim Holt and doubles by Danny Thompson and Rod Carew to tie it.

Doug Bird, 6-3, got the win in 12-3 innings of relief.

The Twins only run in the nightcap came in the first on a single by Harmon Killebrew.

Kansas City responded with two in the bottom of the first. Jim Wohlford tripled to score Fred Patek, who had walked, and Otis brought in Wohlford with a sacrifice fly.

Two more runs were scored in the fourth when Brett smacked an RBI triple and Frank White tripled Brett across.

The timely hitting support enabled Paul Splittorff to coast to his 11th victory against 12 losses.

The Cardinals, whose National League East Division lead over Philadelphia slipped to 1 1/2 games, played catch-up all night with Montreal. The Expos expanded their 1-0 lead in the third with the help of a two-base error by Joe Torre.

Barry Foote singled to score outfielder Larry Bittner, who was making his first start for Montreal, and Ken Singleton, who had walked, scored when Torre threw a grounder by Steve Renko into the stands.

Foote then scored on a bunt down the first-base line.

The Expos added single runs in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings.

St. Louis will send Sonny Siebert, 7-6, against the Expos' Tom Walker, 2-1.

Rod, Gun Club season near final round

The Wednesday Night League at the Sedalia Rod and Gun Club saw Farmers Merchants Bank solidly in the lead with a score of 1,095, followed by Lee's Archery, 1,084 and Bill Greer Motors with 1,084.

Other standings include Western Auto, 1,080; Vinson's Grocery, 1,075; U. S. Rents-It, 1,074; Cole-Cooper Electric, 1,073; David Dove, 1,073; Dick Burk Plumbing, 1,070; Trojan Seed, 1,067; Third National Bank, 1,066.

High team score was held by Lee's Archery, with 113 out of a possible 125; high individual scores for the evening, Dick Cole and Leroy Young, both 25 of 25.

Next week's meet will be the last of the season, it was reported.

Doubleheaders realized by Royals

KANSAS CITY (AP) — It was a free-hitting affair, a total of 49 base hits. The Royals collected 23 and the Twins 26, but Kansas City emerged from the twilight doubleheader Wednesday with 7-6 and 5-1 victories.

Stout relief pitching by Doug Bird stemmed the tide in the first game and helped preserve Paul Splittorff's 11th victory against 12 losses in the second contest.

Bird came on in the eighth inning of the first game after the Twins had pushed across two runs to knot the score at 6-6. Two were out and the lead run was on third base. He got Glenn Borgmann to ground out to Fred Patek.

Amos Otis's third straight single scored George Brett from second with two out in the Royals half of the eighth. That was all the margin Bird needed and he shut the door on Minnesota in the ninth to record his sixth victory against three losses.

The Twins scored one run in the first, two in the second and one in the third before the Royals surged into contention with a four-run rally in their half of the third and moved to a 6-4 advantage in the seventh.

Again in the second game, Minnesota jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the first on three straight singles after two were out. Splittorff then slammed the door. He gave up 10 hits but, except for the first inning, managed to shut off each threat. He struck out seven.

Bird made his second appearance of the night in the ninth. He gave up three hits but escaped without allowing a run.

Amos Otis and Hal McRae contributed three hits apiece to the Royals attack in the first game and Orlando Cepeda and George Brett two each.

Otis, McRae and Brett each had two hits in the second game.

Cepeda, who began his designated-hitter role for Kansas City Tuesday after being called from the Mexican League, has produced four hits and four RBIs in three games.

Kansas City now has won five straight and own a season record of 57-52, five games over the .500 mark and 6½ games off the pace of the American League's West Division leader Oakland.

The Royals and Twins conclude their current series tonight with a single game.

End to player's strike could just be possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — A ray of hope that a solution to the 39-day football strike may be within reach emerged today following a marathon 13-hour negotiating session which broke up early this morning.

"This is by far the best meeting we've had," said chief federal mediator W.J. Usery Jr. "I am still hopeful we can have a resolution this week."

Usery is scheduled to meet again today with representatives of the striking National Football League Players Association and the 26 club owners. Both sides will meet separately before Usery brings them together. No time was announced for the joint meeting, although Usery indicated it would take place before noon.

The latest negotiating session began around 10 a.m. EDT, Wednesday and was not recessed until 1 a.m., although a couple of hours were taken out for meals. Although no substantive results were announced, Usery's post-meeting statements to newsmen were optimistic.

"I feel much better about our meetings today," Usery said. "It's too early to predict what will happen, but I don't think the attitudes could have been much better."

Late Wednesday, Bill Curry, of the Houston Oilers, NFLPA president, denied a report that the players were coming up with new proposals.

Today is the sixth day the warring parties are meeting with Usery during the past two weeks, following similar meetings earlier with his assistants, James Seearce and Lewis Sabbatino.

Meanwhile, the ranks of veterans leaving the strike position and reporting to pre-season training camps continued to grow, although well over two thirds remained out on strike.

Top-seeded players win their matches

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — All of the four top men's seeds — Jimmy Connors, Ilie Nastase, Bjorn Borg and Manuel Orantes — won their matches Wednesday in the rain-delayed U.S. Clay Court Tennis Championships.

The rain, almost as much of a tradition in Indianapolis as the 500-mile race, caused postponement of several doubles matches. It could also give tournament officials some scheduling problems over the next two or three days.

Connors, the top-seeded Wimbledon titlist from Belleville, Ill., decisively defeated Roger Dowdeswell of Rhodesia, 6-2, 6-2.

Romania's Nastase, who has led the tennis Grand Prix for the past two years, struggled for three sets against Marcelo Lara of Mexico in a first-round match, 6-3, 6-7, 6-3.

Borg, the 18-year-old Swedish superstar, clobbered Trey Waltke of St. Louis 6-0 in the first set but had a tougher time winning the second, 7-5.

And Orantes, defending Clay Court champ from Spain who is seeded No. 4 this year, moved ahead in his title defense by defeating countryman Antonio Manoz, 6-4, 6-2.

With the exception of Nastase, all the other top seeds had played one match before. Nastase arrived Tuesday from the Davis Cup series with Italy, which Romania lost 3-2.

Obviously tired from the long plane ride, he overcame a 5-1 deficit against Lara in the second set, led briefly 6-5 and then lost a 7-6 tiebreaker to even the match.

Washington is waiting

No franchise as yet

NEW YORK (AP) — Washington, D.C., apparently seeking to be the site of major league baseball next year, likely will have to wait until 1976.

Washington has expressed keen interest in having baseball next season, one year before an expected wholesale expansion by the majors.

That became evident Wednesday at the major league summer meetings. A key proposal under consideration was to play as many as 20 games in Washington in 1975.

No announced action was taken on the matter, and an official decision was expected today following completion of separate discussions by the American and National Leagues, and then a joint meeting of the leagues.

Sniadecki is now in Card ranks

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals beefed up the middle of their defense Wednesday by acquiring veteran linebacker Jim Sniadecki from the San Francisco 49ers for an undisclosed future draft choice.

Sniadecki, a five-year veteran from Indiana, is primarily a middle linebacker, but also played the outside positions until stepping in as a starter last season for San Francisco.

The 6-foot-2, 230-pound Sniadecki has signed a 1975 contract with the Hawaiians of the World Football League, but the fact apparently does not worry the Cardinals.

"We feel it's a good choice for us, even if it's only for one year," said St. Louis Coach Don Coryell.

A fourth-round pick by the 49ers in 1969, Sniadecki played in all 14 of his club's games in each of his first three seasons, before being sidelined with a broken ankle in 1972.

Coryell said the acquisition of Sniadecki was primarily to plug the center of the Big Red defense until some of the team's younger linebackers developed.

The move leaves the Cardinals with three major middle linebacking candidates: Sniadecki, third year veteran Mark Ameson of Arizona and rookie Greg Hartle, the Cards' 10th-round choice from Newberry, S.C. College.

Ameson has not yet reported to camp because of the players' strike, so Hartle has seen the only game time thus far. Cardinal Director of Operations Joe Sullivan said it was unknown whether Sniadecki, who had not reported to the 49ers' camp, would show up at the Big Red training site.

In other action Wednesday, the Cardinals placed rookie cornerback Dan Crooks of Wisconsin on waivers. Crooks, 5-foot-10 and 180 pounds, had been signed as a free agent.

But the Associated Press learned that Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Lee MacPhail have rejected the proposal.

The Baltimore Orioles helped trigger the proposal by arranging for a special contract that permits them to play 11 of their 81 home games elsewhere in 1975. The 11 is significant in that it means the Orioles could face all the other American League clubs once each in RFK Stadium, the proposed site of the Washington games and the home of the Washington Senators before the franchise was moved to Arlington, Tex. in 1972 and became the Texas Rangers.

It does not mean, however, that the Orioles could not play all of their 81 home games in Baltimore next year.

Reportedly, nearly all other American League clubs had agreed to the plan, and the Atlanta Braves of the National League had consented to play in Washington. Among the National League clubs reportedly having rejected the idea were the Philadelphia Phillies, Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets.

Biggest winner for the Texas Rangers last year was Jim Bibb with nine victories. The team won 57 games, lost 105.

End of days as a Tiger for outfielder Northrup

DETROIT (AP) — Jim Northrup handed over a pile of blank fan club cards to an equipment man and said, "Here, I guess I won't be needing these any more."

Then he continued to stuff gear into a battered equipment bag and reflected upon the end of his career as a Detroit Tiger. His departure, announced Wednesday in the form of a trade with Montreal, coincides with that of fellow veteran Norm Cash.

"I figured it had to happen sooner or later. I've been expecting it for five years," said Northrup, who was told shortly before Detroit's 3-2 victory over Cleveland that he had been traded to the Montreal Expos for a player to be named after the end of the baseball season.

Earlier, the Tigers announced first baseman Cash had been put on waivers in order to give him his unconditional release.

The day marked the end of 15 years as a Tiger for Cash. Northrup, a 34-year-old outfielder, had spent almost a decade with the Bengals. Their parting marks the beginning of the end of an era for the Tigers, who are stifling criticism by brooming old timers and grooming youngsters.

Detroit entered the season with one of the oldest teams in the baseball but is quickly getting rid of the image.

"We're only thinking of one thing now — winning," insisted Manager Ralph Houk. "... I don't anticipate any shake-up. Where are you going to shake up?"

The departure of Cash and Northrup — who said he doesn't think he'll report to Montreal — leaves only seven players left from the 1968 World Series championship team: pitchers Mickey Lolich and John Hiller, center fielder Mickey Stanley, left fielder Willie Horton, first baseman Bill Freehan, plus designated hitters Gates Brown and Al Kaline.

Right-handed pitcher Fred Holdsworth, 22, and shortstop Tom Veryzer, 21, have been called up from the Tigers' Evansville farm club to fill the open spots on the roster. Both were members of the Triple-A squad's All-Star team.

Both Cash and Northrup said they weren't bitter over their fate, but neither seemed particularly pleased.

"I'm not bitter, but I think they could have handled it a little differently," said Cash, who will be paid the rest of his reported $75,000 salary. Northrup earns an estimated $50,000 a year.

Cash appeared in 2,089 AL games with a lifetime batting average of .271. In 53 games this year, many as a pinch hitter, the lefthanded hitting clubhouse comic had a .228 average, seven homers and 12 runs-batted-in.

Northrup said he hadn't spoken with anyone from Montreal. Asked if he would report, he said: "No. At this point in time I sincerely doubt it."

He said he didn't want to be away from his family for six weeks.

Last year Northrup hit .307, his only .300-plus season.

Next on the list of shortages—water

There's another aspect of the long-term energy crisis that many people are unaware of. This is the fact that "enormous additional volumes of water" are going to be needed in the nation's effort to meet its future energy needs.

The growth of the electric power industry alone "will soon produce a water shortage that will make the present energy shortage appear trivial," warned chemical engineer Lawrence K. Cecil, speaking before the recent 94th Annual Conference of the American Water Works Association. The association is a nonprofit scientific and educational society representing 30,000 water utilities in North America.

The already started "economic war" between the raw material-producing nations and the profligate consuming nations is forcing a new look at sources of raw materials, said Cecil.

For energy, we are turning to our lavish supplies of fossil fuels — coal, shale oil, tar sands and secondary and tertiary petroleum production — all of which require a great deal of water. The imminent large increase in the cost of bauxite for aluminum is focussing attention on our abundant low-grade aluminum ores, which will require much more water than high-grade bauxite.

A conservative view

Richard Nixon's ruin now stands complete

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Very well. The wreckage of Richard Nixon's administration is now so nearly complete that further demolition will merely tidy up the ruins. We can begin now to think of Gerald Ford as president of the United States, for this he surely will be.

Kilpatrick

I write on a Tuesday morning, 12 hours after the bombshell disclosures of Monday night, and I am close to tears. Grown men ought not to weep. I have been covering politics and politicians for more than 30 years, and have seen enough of duplicity to be immune to shock. Nixon's duplicity is almost beyond bearing.

The thing is: I believed him. Millions of other Americans believed him also. When he said, over and over, looking us squarely in the eye, that he had known nothing of the Watergate cover-up until March of 1973, we believed him. "Your President is not a crook," he once said. I believed him. It no longer greatly matters. My President is a liar.

He lied to the people, in his public statements. He lied to his lawyers. He lied to the press. On June 23, 1972, just five days after the Watergate break-in, he himself set in motion the cover-up. He himself knew of the Watergate cash. He himself set a pattern of deceit for others to follow.

Why did he do it? His conduct is beyond comprehension. In June of 1972, George McGovern's nomination was assured, which is to say that Nixon's own re-election was assured. Given the political situation at that time, there was no way that Nixon's candidacy could have been fatally damaged. If he had told the people the truth at that time — the whole truth, holding nothing back — the Watergate scandal would have been a nine-day wonder. The campaign could have

The rapidly burgeoning coal gasification industry requires water for use in its product, as well as water for cooling. The pipeline pumping of slurries, like pulverized coal, also demand water, though most of it can be recovered at the destination.

The most important raw material is food. Purchases of food from this country and food donations to some nations facing starvation because of droughts will place a large demand for water in American agriculture. Already, Cecil noted, there is fierce competition for water between agriculture and energy in the fossil fuel-rich Western states.

But if it takes water to make energy, it takes energy to produce water, another speaker reminded the conference. Water utilities are beginning to wonder where the power is going to come from to supply the future's greatly increased demands for water.

The message of the conference seems to be that there's water, water everywhere, with many a drop to drink and use for other purposes. But great efforts, and great changes, will be needed over the coming years if we want to keep it that way. (NEA) proceeded on course. But he lied. One gropes amidst the debris. Monday night's disclosures clear up a few points. More than a year ago, when I was among many persons urging the President voluntarily to release the tapes, I said that his refusal would permit an inference that he had something to hide. All right. He had something to hide. A couple of months ago, I suggested to Mr. Nixon that Bob Haldeman, by not keeping him informed, had betrayed him. The President sharply denied it. At least he told the truth about that. Haldeman had indeed kept him informed. Haldeman did not betray him. The President betrayed himself.

The just-disclosed conversation of June 23, 1972, explains the later conversations of March, 1973, looking for expressions of presidential amazement and outrage. We found none. It seemed odd, because we were given to understand that he was only then beginning to comprehend the involvement of such aides as Maurice Stans and John Mitchell. We had been led astray; we had been lied to. No wonder he was not amazed that March! No wonder he was not outraged!

The lies, the lies, the lies! My President is a liar. I wish he were a crook instead. Three months ago he gave us a stack of transcripts, and he provided a fine false summary to go with them: "Throughout the period of the Watergate affair the raw material of these recorded conversations establishes that the President ... had no knowledge of any cover-up prior to March 21, 1973." The sentence is a devious work of art. He did have knowledge of the cover-up. He himself had helped to contrive it.

What a pity, what a pity! Here was a President who got us out of Vietnam, ended the draft, restored a needed conservative balance to the Supreme Court, launched hopeful programs of new federalism, and by his bold overtures to Red China opened new avenues toward world peace. Now the good vanishes in the wreckage of the bad. The swearing-in of Gerald Ford can't come one hour too soon.

Art Buchwald

Behold, a human engineer

There is a new science in this country which is called human engineering. The object of human engineering, as I understand it, is to fit human beings into inhuman conditions.

Buchwald

I made this discovery while riding on an airplane from New York to Washington the other day. Seated next to me was a man who was taking very careful measurements of the space between us and then writing it in a notebook.

I asked him what he was doing, and he said he was a human engineer, and it was his job to see how many more people he could squeeze on an airplane without doing permanent bodily harm to the passengers.

"We used to have five seats across," he said proudly, "but we've managed to put another seat in each row, and as you can see we can now get six people across."

"How on earth did you do it?" I asked him.

"We cut the center aisle in half. The passengers have to walk sideways, but just think of what the extra seats mean to the company's payroll."

"Which, of course, is all that you're worried about."

"You can bet your sweet whistle on that," he said. "I'm very concerned, though, that there still seems to be room between your knees and the seat in front of you."

"Only about two inches," I said.

"Well, if you take two inches away here and two inches away there, you can put another row of seats on the plane."

"Then my knees should be flush against the seat ahead?"

"Naturally, my dear boy. You can't expect legroom on such a short hop. One more thing. I was wondering how you feel about a reclining seat as opposed to a stationary one."

"I prefer a reclining seat. It gives me a chance to rest a little."

He started writing in his book: "Customer too tempted by reclining chair, so I strongly recommend stationary kind which will allow us two more rows in back."

He looked at me. "You came on board with a package. What did you do with it?"

"I put it under my seat."

He wrote again: "Customer can still get package under seat, which means we're wasting valuable space which could better be used for air freight."

"You people really think of everything," I said.

"We try to," he replied, "but it's a tough struggle. There are a lot of people in the aviation business who are behind the times, and we have to show them that their best interests lie not with the passengers but with the stockholders. I'm having a devil of a time trying to get the company to remove the armrests."

"You want to do away with the armrests?"

"Of course. If you did away with the armrests, everyone would be forced to sit closer together, and we could get eight people in a row."

"Say, have you ever thought of putting people in the baggage rack overhead?" I asked him.

He studied it for a few moments. "It could be done, if we could fit them in horizontally." He made another note: "Check about stuffing people into overhead baggage rack."

"You covered all the bases," I said in admiration.

"Not quite," he said, staring at the washroom.

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Some occasional scorekeeping may help the public keep up with the games that are played in Washington.

For two years, the American people have been bombarded with charges and denials. Now President Nixon has confessed that he lied even to his own aides about his role in the Watergate cover-up.

Loyal White House aides were stunned, say our sources, when they heard excerpts from the 64 suppressed tapes. One White House source told us grimly that no man should have his most intimate manipulations exposed in such excruciating detail as the tapes reveal the President.

It's no secret, of course, that we have been in the forefront of those who have accused President Nixon of condoning lawlessness while he preached law and order.

For our pains, we have been hounded by government gumshoes. The notorious "plumbers" posted my name on the wall of their White House hangout as their chief target in the spring of 1972. They arranged with the Justice Department's Internal Security Division to stake out my house and tail me wherever I went.

At least four people had their phones tapped because they were suspected of giving us information. Others were interrogated while strapped to lie detectors. One suspected source was browbeaten until he broke down and wept.

My associate Les Whitten was arrested and handcuffed by FBI agents on phony charges that were quickly rejected by a grand jury. One of the "plumbers," G. Gordon Liddy, even started off to gun me down until he was stopped by a horrified Jeb Magruder.

Throughout it all, the White House assailed us with denials and denunciations. In light of the President's latest confession, now may be a good time to publish the box score:

✓ We reported "categorically" on April 26, 1973, that "President Nixon had no advance knowledge of the Watergate break-in and bugging." But we repeatedly charged, beginning as early as March 29, 1973, that he had approved the overall espionage-sabotage operation and the later cover-up. All of this is now confirmed in the White House tapes.

✓ As early as Jan. 11 and 15, 1973, we revealed for the first time that E. Howard Hunt had access to mysterious cash and that he had offered to buy the silence of fellow Watergate conspirators. We later learned the money had come from a $350,000 cash fund which, we reported on April 19, 1973, had been stashed in the apartment of White House aide Fred LaRue. This has now developed into one of the most serious charges against President Nixon.

✓ We revealed on Aug. 6, 1971, that billionaire Howard Hughes had sent a $100,000 cash gift to President Nixon. The money was delivered to his friend Bebe Rebozo who collected cash from "other fatcats," we wrote on Jan. 23, 1973, including the founders of the Winn-Dixie supermarket chain. These facts have now been established beyond dispute.

✓ We tipped off Senate investigators that Rebozo had distributed the Hughes cash, in part, to the President's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, and his two brothers.

Merry-go-round

Reviewing the record in Watergate claims

Donald and Edward. The investigators got confirmation under oath from the President's former attorney, Herbert Kalmbach. To cover up this misuse of the Hughes money, the investigators believe, the White House took steps which led to the original Watergate break-in. Their theory that the whole Watergate fiasco grew out of an attempt to conceal the Hughes-Nixon connection has been spelled out now in a Senate Watergate Committee staff report.

✓ We revealed on Sept. 23, 1972, while former Attorney General John Mitchell was still riding high, that he had received copies of the Watergate wiretap reports. This was the first public charge that he was linked to the Watergate operation. The code name for the wiretap reports, we later disclosed, was "Gemstone." Mitchell denied his involvement under oath. "The first time I ever heard of Gemstone," he swore, "was in Jack Anderson's column." But a grand jury has now indicted him for conspiracy and perjury.

✓ Beginning on Oct. 3, 1972, we told in a series of columns how President Nixon had squandered the taxpayers' money on his San Clemente and Key Biscayne estates. A confidential Sept. 28, 1972, memo describes how the General Services Administration tried to hide the facts from us. The details were spread on the record, completely confirming our reports, during the House impeachment debate.

✓ We also wrote a series of columns, beginning Oct. 16, 1973, detailing how the President had escaped paying his fair share of taxes. Refuting his claim that the tax irregularities had been the work of subordinates, we reported on March 8, 1974, that he had checked over the controversial returns "page by page" before signing them. All of this has been confirmed in sworn testimony before the Joint Congressional Taxation Committee and the House Judiciary Committee.

✓ We were the first to confront ex-Vice President Spiro Agnew in 1971, according to his former press secretary Vic Gold, with charges that Agnew had been taking bribes from Maryland contractors. Agnew categorically denied the charges, and our sources refused to step into the open. So the story went unpublished for two years until government prosecutors nailed the former vice president.

✓ We reported on April 10, 1974, that former Treasury Secretary John Connally was under investigation for alleged bribery, a "dramatic development," we wrote, "that could finish Connally as a presidential contender." Some newspapers, in picking up our story, quoted government investigators as saying the charges were "iffy." Now a grand jury has indicted Connally without any ifs.

✓ During our expose of ITT in March 1972, we accused both Attorney General Richard Kleindienst and California's Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke of lying about their testimony in the case. Kleindienst has now pleaded guilty to make a "false statement" and Reinecke has been convicted of perjury.

We cite the box scores not to boast but to encourage public officials to tell the truth.

Lancelot didn't make this play. He saw that a 3-0 break in trumps would lead to his sure defeat, if West held the ace of hearts and was smart enough to lead a high diamond when he gained the lead.

Therefore, Lancelot led dummy's king of hearts and discarded the eight of diamonds. West took his ace and made his best lead with the ace of diamonds. Lancelot trumps with the six of spades in dummy, pulls two rounds of trump ending up in dummy with the trump ace. He discards his queen and three of clubs on dummy's top hearts, trumps dummy's next heart, draws the last trump with the queen and claims the rest.

Ann Landers

Majority finds nudity acceptable

Dear Ann Landers: You must be some kind of nut. I refer to your answer to that 15-year-old boy who was embarrassed at having to shower after gym with dozens of others. The lad said he considered it an invasion of his privacy, and that those boys who wanted to should be allowed to wear bathing trunks.

You told the kid he must have a bit of a hang-up and if he didn't get over his feelings of discomfort in a year or two to get professional help.

I honestly think you are crazy. Where is your sense of modesty? Do you believe that just because a young boy doesn't want to parade around naked in the presence of other boys that he is sick? Who did you consult for that one? The head of a nudist camp?

Please talk to some sensible psychologists, psychiatrists, high school coaches and normal boys and see what answers THEY come up with. — Play It Again, Sam

Dear Sam: Your letter was one of thousands complaining about my advice. So I DID play it again. I consulted three psychiatrists, (one, Dr. William Simpson of the Menninger Foundation — an excellent swimmer and the father of four sons), two psychologists, and two Chicago high school athletic directors. I also spoke with three teen-age boys — 14, 15, 16. The results were unanimous, and here's what I gleaned on the second go-round.

A 15-year-old boy might be uncomfortable showering in the nude before his classmates if he were physically underdeveloped or overdeveloped, or if he were unusually fat and looked as if he had female breasts. But the vast majority of teen-age boys think nothing of nudity before members of their own sex.

I am pleased that so many of you wrote to complain. It gave me an opportunity to elaborate on this subject and to make a case for the boys with physical problems.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother, who is middle-aged (38), has been ill for a while. She went to a well-respected doctor and this is what he told her: "Go where you want to go, do what you want to do, and don't worry."

Does that sound sensible to you? Several of us are concerned about such advice. What do you think? — Her Daughter

Dear Daughter: It depends on where she wants to go and what she wants to do. Apparently that doctor had sufficient confidence in your mother's judgment to give her a blank check.

Perhaps your mother has been unduly concerned about her "image" and has kept her true feelings bottled up for a good many years. Repression and fear of expressing one's views can make a person physically ill. Maybe this is what the doctor is driving at. If so, he gave her excellent advice.

Dear Ann: Thanks for helping the Federal Drug Administration do its job. I refer to the letter you printed about the young man who ignored the sun lamp instructions and spent two days and two nights "in agony."

Recently we collected some data. Last year about 9,000 people were treated in hospital emergency rooms for sun lamp burns. Most of the burns were to the face and eyes. Female patients outnumbered the males two to one.

We'll keep looking for ways to get people to read instructions before they use a sun lamp. In the meantime, thank you, Ann Landers, for a big lift. — Alexander M. Schmidt, M.D., Commissioner Of Food And Drugs

Dear Commissioner: Glad to be of help. I hope this second "reminder" does some good.

Can drugs be a friend in time of stress? If you keep your head together can they be of help? Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs" separates the fact from the fiction. Get it today. For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654. c. 1974 Field Enterprises, Inc.

The Nashville sound

Joins Wagoner show

By CHRISTOPHER CABOT

Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE (AP) — When Barbara Lea mailed a photograph and two records to Porter Wagoner in May, she didn't dream she'd get a job interview.

Two days later, she met Wagoner in his Music Row office. Within a month, Barbara Lea had been selected from 4,000 applicants for a female lead on Wagoner's syndicated television show. She was the new Wagonermistress of the Wagonmasters band, filling a gap left by Dolly Parton's departure.

"I was working with an IBM key punch computer and writing songs when I heard that Dolly was starting her own band," the shy blonde said last week.

"I guess I wondered if I could even get an interview.

And after I was interviewed, I was so nervous about being chosen that I couldn't eat or sleep."

Barbara's previous professional experience was limited to two Asian tours with Roy Acuff in 1969 and 1970. She had performed at park concerts and had written and recorded two songs for an independent company—the same two songs she sent to Wagoner.

Suddenly, the farm girl from Putnam County, Tenn., faces a schedule of weekly TV appearances, road trips with the Wagonmasters and regular performances on the Grand Ole Opry.

"I am overwhelmed by the whole thing," she freely admits. "But I just take it day by day."

Barbara will not sing duets with Wagoner, that's Dolly's territory. Barbara hopes to carve out her own following.

"When I walk out on stage, I walk out as me because that's how I feel. Really when I go out I don't want people to think, 'Gee, she's the girl taking Dolly's place.' I want them to accept me as me."

Like many of her predecessors on the Opry stage, Barbara grew up on a farm—her family's near Tennessee's Cumberland Mountains.

"I never did think that I would make it, so in high school I thought I'd like to be an airline stewardess so I would travel. But still I sang and picked up a guitar and I learned how to play about five or six years ago. But I never dreamed that anything like this would happen."

"I feel like I'm the luckiest girl in the world."

Kidney is a good food

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have a question to ask you that I am ashamed to ask my own doctor. I like beef kidney very much, but my husband told me it contains urine from the animal. Ever since he told me this I won't eat kidney again. Is this true? Also, what nutritional value does it have and why does it have an odor when cooking?

Dear Reader — There is nothing to be ashamed of. Kidney is considered a delicacy in many parts of the world, including Europe.

There probably is some urine in the kidney or at least left over molecules of it inside the tissue. After all, the kidney is a filter, and it filters urine out of the blood so it can be discarded. Just keep in mind, though, that urine isn't as bad as most people in our culture seem to think it is. It is literally part of the blood. In a sense you have urine in all of the blood in your body and that means in all the tissues of the body. That also means there is urine in that steak you eat, too.

Urine in a normal person or animal is sterile, free of bacteria, because it is part of blood. It is made up of water, salts, and left-over products of what you eat. The urea it contains is simply the ammonia acids from excess protein. If you eat a lot of protein, more than your body needs, there will be more excess ammonia that must be eliminated (the body can't store it as fat) and that means more urea. Part of the ammonia group from amino acids in protein is used to build more body protein, or to replace protein that is lost.

That smell you are complaining about is mostly from the ammonia in the urea. You may not like the smell, but it is not harmful any more than the ammonia in the protein in your steak.

Kidneys are a good source of protein for the diet. They contain many important vitamins. The one nutritional drawback is their cholesterol content. Three-and-a-half ounces of raw kidney contains 375 milligrams of cholesterol. That is more than most people should get from all sources in their diet for a day's time. Even so, an occasional meal of kidneys is not likely to be harmful, and if you eat sensibly and avoid high-cholesterol, high-fat foods the rest of the time, they can be a good addition to the diet.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I've heard that gall stones cannot pass but kidney stones can. Is this true or false?

Dear Reader — FALSE! It depends entirely on the size of the stone. You can have small gall stones and they will pass, sometimes with difficulty. Or, you can have a big stone far too large to ever get out of the gall bladder.

Likewise you can have a small kidney stone, and it will pass and can be very painful. But, you can have a big stone

People in the news

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham, once a frequent visitor to the White House, says he is following Vice President Gerald R. Ford's example and not commenting on President Nixon's latest problems.

Graham, 55, is undergoing treatment as an out-patient at the Mayo Clinic. He is suffering from a gum infection and high blood pressure, but said he was responding well to treatment and plans to leave Rochester this week.

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP) — Actor Sebastian Cabot has been released from the hospital after suffering a stroke three weeks ago, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said only that the 55-year-old actor, who played the butler on the defunct television series "Family Affair," had recovered sufficiently to be discharged last weekend.

Cabot spends his summers at Deep Cove, B.C.

The earth is located at an average distance of 93 million miles from the sun.

Some of the most unusual things about a Volkswagen are things you don't usually see.

Look under the fender of a Volkswagen and you'll find something you wouldn't dream of finding: paint. We use 13 lbs. of it on every VW. Some of it in the most unlikely places.

Under the chassis of a Volkswagen you'll find something only a handful of cars in the world have: a sealed steel bottom. This protects all those vital things inside the car from all those vile things out on the road.

See those four wheels sticking up in the air? Well, you can press down on any one of them without the others moving. This means that when one wheel hits a bump, the other wheels don't feel a thing.

Even more amazing, you get all these luxury car features at an economy car price... with economy car gas mileage... the most advanced car coverage in the world... and almost unbelievable resale value (a '72 VW retails for as much today as it did new).

You couldn't find a better buy if you stood on your head.

TV 'premier

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Unless impeachment debates change planned schedules, all three TV networks will hold "premiere week" — the start of the fall TV season — the week of Sept. 9 amid much ballyhoo and drumbeating.

Excluding ABC's "NFL Monday Night Football" show, 62 evening programs are in the networks' lineups for the new season. Of these, 25 are new.

CBS has five new shows and NBC and ABC 10 each. According to network spokesmen, only two would start during "premiere week."

These shows, both on ABC-TV, are "Nakia," an hour-long action-adventure series about a lawman of Navajo heritage, and "The Sonny Bono Comedy Revue," starring Sonny Bono but not Cher, who has left him. "Nakia" debuts Saturday, Sept. 21 and the Bonoshow Sept. 22.

Another ABC series, "That's My Mama," a half-hour situation comedy about a black family in Washington, D.C., is the only new show getting a jump on premiere week, ABC says it'll air Sept. 4 a Wednesday.

Lady cops, whose ranks are swelling on big-city police forces, will make a limited dent in this season's law-and-order gang on TV.

Premiere week features two of the breed — "Christie Love" on ABC and "Police Woman" on NBC. The shows respectively star Teresa Graves and Angie Dickinson, both as undercover detectives.

Another NBC series, "Amy Prentiss," features Jessica Walter as a police lieutenant in charge of male cops. The show replaces the Hee Ramsey segment on NBC's "Sunday Mystery Movie" quarter, but NBC says it doesn't know yet if Lt. Prentiss will report for duty Sept. 15.

Only two new shows — CBS' "Rhoda," a spinoff from the "Mary Tyler Moore Show" and NBC's "Born Free" — are on the Monday schedule during television's big week, and no new series will appear Tuesday nights.

The week's real rash of new series starts Wednesday, Sept. 11, with "Sons and Daughters" and "The Manhunter" on CBS, "Little House on the Prairie," "Lucas Tanner" and "Petrucelli" on NBC and "Christie Love" on ABC.

On Sept. 12, NBC's "Sierra" and "Movin' On" shows and ABC's "Paper Moon" and "Harry O" series will debut as regular programs.

CBS' new offering for Friday the 13th is "Planet of the Apes." NBC will provide "Chico & the Man," "The Rockford Files" and "Police Woman" as its new-show fare that night, while ABC is offering "Kodiak," "Texas Wheelers" and "Kolchak: The Night Stalker."

On Saturday, Sept. 14, the new regular shows kicking off are "The Paul Sand" show on CBS and ABC's "The New Land" series, to be joined a week later by "Nakia."

The only blockbuster movies in the premiere week lineup are the film version of "M*A*S*H," aired by CBS Friday night, Sept. 13, and "Kluge," starring Jane Fonda as a prostitute and Donald Sutherland as a detective. NBC says it'll show that film Saturday, Sept. 14.
